

Maude Toussaint-Comeau
Economist

Maude Toussaint-Comeau is an economist in the microeconomics team of the economic research department of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. In that position, Toussaint-Comeau conducts research on labor market integration and access to credit by vulnerable populations.

Toussaint-Comeau has authored and co-authored several papers on the use of formal and informal financial markets by minority groups and the use of alternative financial services such as check-cashing outlets and payday loan companies. Her current research focuses on immigrant utilization of financial services, labor market adjustment, homeownership attainment by Hispanics and immigrant/ethnic self-employment. She is published in Review of Economics and Statistics, International Migration Review, Contemporary Economics Policy, etc.

Prior to joining the Chicago Fed in June 1998, she taught economics at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

She received a Ph.D. in economics/public policy analysis from the University of Illinois at Chicago, an M.S. in economics from Temple University and a B.A. in economics from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.