

JOURNALISM & TECHNOLOGY

At the Merge, Not the Crossroads

Common Assumptions

- Citizen bloggers, programmers, social media, technology and lack of interest will replace journalism and journalists.
- Newspapers are dying. Broadcast television news is disappearing. And radio may already be dead and no one noticed.

Except for public radio and that's about to be defunded.

Israel's settlement setback | Seth Freedman

2009-06-08T14:26:25Z

Seth Freedman

Obama's anti-settlement stance is giving the Israeli right a taste of its own medicine â€” and its howls of protest ring hollow

President Obama's anti-settlement stance has, unsurprisingly, prompted an outpouring of wailing and teeth-gnashing among supporters of Israel's irredentist policies. His unequivocal demand for settlement expansion to come to a grinding halt has dominated headlines in both Israel and the diaspora, with many outraged by his assertion that "natural growth" of settlements be proscribed as well.

In his opponents' eyes, to call for an end to natural growth is â€” as Charles Krauthammer put it â€” to "strangle to death the thriving towns close to the 1949 armistice line", as though Obama's views are as insidious as those of a serial killer hellbent on leaving a trail of corpses in his wake. "It means no increase in population", Krauthammer continues. "Which means no babies. Or if you have babies, no housing for them â€” not even within the existing town boundaries. Which means for every child born, someone has to move out. No community can survive like that".

There's no denying he has a point. If more children are born than elderly residents die in a particular settlement, a dearth of accommodation will, in time, undermine the settlement's ability to function as a living, breathing town. Its pattern of natural expansion and contraction will be utterly usurped by external pressures that will crush the life from its lungs, with potentially terminal results.

Rodriguez lifts Yankees to victory over Rays

By The Machine

ST. PETERSBURG — An outstanding effort by Alex Rodriguez carried the Yankees to a 10-2 victory over the Rays on Sunday at Tropicana Field.

Rodriguez blasted two home runs for New York. He went 3-4 in the game with seven RBIs and two runs scored.

Rodriguez homered in the sixth and sixth innings.

The biggest inning for the Yankees was the sixth. In the inning New York scored 10 runs.

In addition to Rodriguez's home run and Rodriguez's home run, reliever Andy Sonnanstine gave up one run on a Jose Molina fielding error by pitcher Andy Sonnanstine in the sixth. Later that inning, two more runs came in on Johnny Damon's double.

The Yankees teamed up on a stellar pitching performance. The six pitchers combined to allow seven hits.

A.J. Burnett was solid on the mound while bagging the win for New York. He allowed one earned run over five innings. The New York righty gave up seven hits while walking one and striking out three.

Wade Davis suffered his first loss of the season for Tampa Bay. He went five innings, walked two, struck out five, and allowed five runs.

Alex Davis' walk-off single off of Pepper Gay boosted Minnesota to a 3-2 win over Illinois.

Davis got on base two times in the game for Minnesota (31-24). She also drove in four runs in the seventh inning.

Sara Moulton kept Illinois (27-22) off the base paths, recording 10 strikeouts. The Cornhuskers earned runs, five hits and three walks over seven innings.

Gay didn't have her stuff going on the rubber for the Fighting Illini and was charged with a walk, walked seven, struck out three, and allowed three runs.

It didn't take long for Minnesota to answer as it scored one run of its own in the third inning on a groundout by Kari Dorle.

Illinois tied the game in the fifth when Jessica Davis reached on an error, bringing the game back to a tie.

We Turn Data Into Stories

Narrative Science transforms data into high-quality editorial content. Our technology application generates news stories, industry reports, headlines and more — at scale and without human authoring or editing. Narratives can be created from almost any data set, be it numbers or text, structured or unstructured.

Whether you maintain your own proprietary database, or cover subjects supported by broadly available data including public data sources, our technology cost-effectively turns facts and figures into compelling stories in real time.
