

Rosetta Newsome is director of science and policy initiatives at the Institute of Food Technologists (IFT). The IFT is a nonprofit scientific society. IFT members are professionals in engaged in food science, food technology and related professions in industry, academia and government. The IFT's mission is to advance the science of food. Newsome is involved in production of the IFT's science reports, public policy and regulatory outreach, Codex Alimentarius and grant and contract activities.