

Sam Kahan is a well-known and respected financial economist, with more than 30 years of experience analyzing and forecasting the global capital markets.

He has an in-depth knowledge of industry and banking trends and has been widely quoted in the global media. He is a sought-after public speaker.

Sam joined ACT in 2010 from the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, Detroit branch, where he had been senior economist for 11 years. Prior to that, Sam held executive positions with A.S.K. Financial Research, Ltd. and Fuji Securities, Inc., among others.

Sam holds a B.A. in Economics from Yeshiva University and both an M.A. and Ph. M. in economics from Columbia University.

Sam was honored with The Lawrence R. Klein Award for Most Accurate Economic Forecasts.